District Man Sentenced for Shooting Two Victims at Columbia Heights Metro

– Assault occurred in afternoon on crowded street –

WASHINGTON - Devyn Black, a 19-year-old District man, was sentenced today to eleven years in prison in connection with the June 18, 2009, shooting of two victims outside the Metro station in Columbia Heights, Acting U.S. Attorney Channing D. Phillips announced. On September 29, 2009, the defendant, also known by the nickname "Hamburger," pleaded guilty to Aggravated Assault While Armed and Possession of a Firearm During a Crime of Violence for his involvement in the shooting. The plea and sentencing took place in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia before the Honorable Judge Robert Richter.

According to a factual proffer provided at the plea hearing, on June 18, 2009, just before 3:00 p.m., one of the victims was returning from an orientation for a summer jobs program at the D.C. Convention Center aboard a Metro train. The defendant was on the same train and saw the victim, with whom he had a fight about a month earlier. Armed with a semiautomatic pistol, the defendant and a group of his friends followed the victim, who ran from the train up to the sidewalk outside the Columbia Heights Metro station. In broad daylight, just outside the escalator, the defendant confronted the victim and shot him twice. The bullets struck the victim in both legs – and also struck an uninvolved bystander, who was waiting nearby for the bus, in the leg. The victim fled and then collapsed nearby in a pool of blood, as terrified bystanders fled the shooting scene. Both victims were taken to the hospital and admitted for their injuries.

In announcing the sentence, Acting U.S. Attorney Phillips commended Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) Detective Antoine Weston, the lead detective on the case, along with Detectives Shelley Anderson, Investigators Osbaldo Luna, Joseph McKenna, and Amber Chesla, Officers Ivan Quiles, Christopher Dorsey, Virgilio Baez, Eli Ellingsworth, and Jason Bagshaw, and Crime Scene Officer James Fields, who investigated the case. Acting U.S. Attorney Phillips also expressed his appreciation to Paralegals Kalisha Johnson-Clark and Wanda Trice, who prepared the case for trial, and Assistant U.S. Attorneys Jonathan Hooks and Emily Miller, who investigated, indicted and prepared the case for trial.
